NLA is the centre for London's built environ- ment

Located at The Building Centre in WC1, NLA is a focus for the debate and discussion of issues facing London's built environment today. Our galleries are a permanent resource for the public - tourists, local communities and students as well as professionals. We are open six days a week and receive over 2,500 visitors per week from London, the UK and abroad.

Our exhibitions, events and publications provide detailed and exclusive information about property, architecture, planning and construction in London.

Our year-round programme of free talks, conferences and think-tank discussions attracts leading decision-makers in London government, property, planning and design. This broad audience of architects, engineers, developers, agents, planners, councillors, officers and community provides an unrivalled networking environment.

In the last year alone we have hosted 91 events with over 400 high-level speakers that have attracted a total audience in excess of 15,000 individuals

NLA communicates with over 200,000 people each year

NLA produces New London Quarterly, an award-winning publication featuring interviews, reviews and analysis as well as a commercial property directory. It is circulated to 5,000 senior players involved in London business, government and property.

The NLA website is the number one online resource for London's built environment and features over 585 new and proposed projects, attracting over 50,000 unique visits per month.

Our weekly e-newsletter goes to over 40,000 subscribers and keeps them up to date with latest news, events and initiatives.

Over 2,500 people per week visit the NLA galleries which feature the Pipers Central London model, displays on major development activity across all 33 London Boroughs as well as curated and hosted exhibitions.
